

BIOGRAPHY

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

CHIEF MASTER SERGEANT FAMBRO W. KNIGHT

CMSgt Fambro Knight is the Group Superintendent, 1st Weather Group, Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska. In this capacity Chief Knight advises the Group Commander on operational, training and personnel issues affecting over 1100 personnel assigned to six geographically separated squadrons providing aircrew mission briefings, airfield and range forecasts, severe weather warnings, and other operational decision-making weather support for Air Force, Army, Guard, and Reserve forces located at 530 DoD installations in all unified combatant commands. Additionally, Chief Knight manages the enlisted professional development and awards recognition programs

Chief Knight entered the Air Force in March of 1994 as an Aerospace Ground Equipment (AGE) mechanic and was assigned to Langley AFB. After three years he retrained into the weather career field in 1997. Chief Knight has held various leadership roles in both AGE and the weather career field at the flight, squadron, group and MAJCOM level.

Prior to assuming his current position, Chief Knight was the Squadron Superintendent for 2d Weather Squadron at Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska.
